Located in the heart of Queen's University Quarter, Molly's Yard is housed in the converted Victorian stables and courtyard of College Green House and serves superior but unpretentious Modern Irish cuisine. is a Belfast restaurant with such a disarmingly relaxed and familiar charm that once inside you feel far from the madding crowd.

The menus are kept small with the emphasis placed on preparing food which is fresh, seasonal and locally sourced.

An added attraction (if any were needed) is the draught beer on sale. Molly's Yard is currently the only restaurant in town where you can enjoy a Headless Dog, Molly's Chocolate Stout or Belfast Blonde on tap, and all produced just down the road at Hilden Brewery, Ireland's oldest independent brewery.
